Program Example: Company XYZ

Company XYZ wants to initiate a safety program with a maximum out-of-pocket for the company set at $100 per employee. They realize some of the employees will be purchasing footwear that costs more than that amount. They negotiate a program with Steel-Toe-Shoes.com to provide a $115 voucher to the employee that will at most be billed to the $100 acceptable company approved limit.

So far, Company XYZ has already provided greater purchasing value to its employees than they will be paying out-of-pocket (win-win). Now, the employee decides to purchase a pair of boots for $150. During the checkout process (online or phone) they use their $115 voucher and pay the remaining balance using their personal card to complete the order.

Within 30 minutes of the employee's purchase, the designated person at Company XYZ receives a copy of the employee's order for their records. At the end of the month the designated person at Company XYZ will receive a full statement of that month's purchases with itemized order details for payment.

Notes: If an employee uses less than the voucher amount then Company XYZ would be billed the following (voucher amount used X negotiated discount rate). The voucher is single-use and expires on the date of the employer's choosing.
